SUBJECT: Accepting Applications for USF's Online MA in CTE & Ph.D. in CWE programs

Colleagues:

USF is accepting applications for the Fall 2021 cohort for the online M.A. Degree in Career and Technical Education (CTE) and Ph.D. in Career and Workforce Education programs at the University of South Florida.

The M.A. in CTE is a two-year, 10 course online program designed for practitioners in all areas of CTE at the middle school, high school, technical center and community college level. No GRE scores are required. The MA in CTE is an exciting program featuring a STEM focus and practical applications for conceptualizing, implementing, and evaluating programs in CTE depending on individual interests. In addition, by completing the MA in CTE, participants fulfill coursework requirements for Local Director of Vocational Education certification. For an overview of the program you may visit: here.

The Ph.D. in Career and Workforce Education (CWE) is a research degree that prepares professionals interested in positions in teaching, research, and policy positions in universities, four-year colleges, community/technical colleges, government agencies, and in the private sector. If you are interested in advancing STEM in CTE, curriculum integration, infusing technology, and broadening the participation of students in high-tech, high-wage careers you should consider pursuing the Ph.D. in CWE at the University of South Florida. For further information about the program, visit: here.

Please share this email with those you think might be interested in the MA in CTE or the Ph.D. in CWE. The deadline for admission application for entry in Fall 2021 is February 15th. If you are interested in admission for Fall 2021 but miss the February deadline for whatever reason, after that date you may proceed as follows: (a) choose the option for entry in Fall 2022, and (b) send us a note indicating that you would like to be admitted in Fall 2021 and we will work around it.
